

Ensuring your septic system is maintained will save an early replacement as well as the financial costs related to replacement. Septic systems that have failed are hazardous to the environment and your families health.

A septic system is one of your homes most important equity features.

Follow these simple procedures for maintaining your system.

Separation Distances

As required by the Ontario Building Code, there are minimum separation distances for septic components regarding the placement of the septic system. Ensuring these requirements are met will lead to a longer-lasting system and ensure your families health.
